

To summarise.

1. Both parties agree to include the statements described above at the beginning of any chapters that include work that was done together.
2. In accordance with clause 1, both parties grant the other permission to use any of the tables and figures from the jointly written paper that they made, if the other party agrees to grant reciprocal permission, and agree to additional acknowledgements for the following figures:
  - a. Figure 2 and 3, Ian agrees to acknowledge Krishna's copyright in the figure captions as described above
  - b. Figures 1, 7, 8, and 9, Krishna agrees to acknowledge Ian's copyright in the figure captions as described above
  - c. Other figures, Ian can use
3. In accordance with clause 1, both parties agree not to include explicit statements claiming particular credit throughout the chapters, except for those specific examples detailed in clause 2 and within a specific section that was described in the agreed acknowledgement statement at the beginning of the chapter
  - a. The primary supervisor (Dr Offer) will check both theses before they are submitted, and both parties agree to abide by any reasonable requests for changes to be made to uphold this clause
4. In accordance with clause 1, both parties agree not to inhibit the other party from re-using any of the work that they did together in any way, as long as it is included in a chapter with one of the agreed acknowledgement statements
  - a. This does not include the literature review chapters, which both parties must re-write in their own words, noting that who originally found a reference cannot be claimed and any conclusions that were made when working together should not be accompanied by an explicit statement claiming credit.

Both parties are free to re-arrange and/or re-structure their chapters as they are writing, as long as they abide by the clauses above. I.e. any chapter than contains work done jointly must include the agreed statement at the beginning of that chapter or section of work. The chapters described above merely reflect the chapter structure that was presented at the time of this agreement.
